Grassland patches surrounded by less grassland contain more monarch butterflies compared to patches surrounded by more grassland. However, egg + larva abundance was most related to the density of milkweeds.